- The two maps show the main changes which have taken place in the town of Castellón between the year 2000 and today.
- In general, it appears that Castellón has become a much more modern city, with far more shopping and transport facilities.
- One interesting change is that a new tram line has been built, to connect the university with the town centre. In 2000, there wasn't any accommodation for students, but a hall of residence has been built near the university. Another striking change is that the old market in the west of the city has been knocked down to make way for new shops. A completely new covered market has also been built on the other side of town.
- If we look at the port area, it has been pedestrianized since 2000, and a range of entertainment facilities have been built, such as cinemas, bars and clubs. The north-east of the city used to be a green area, with lots of trees, but the trees have been cut down, and a new shopping complex has been constructed. A final interesting development has been the introduction of a bike-rental scheme in the city centre.

Maps

- a Tell us about how you found Castellón when you went back.
Well, I don't think the people have changed much, they've always been really friendly and welcoming to outsiders, but what strikes me is that the city has become much more modern and dynamic. Ten years ago, the city used to be very calm and quiet, but there have been lots of changes, and now it's much faster and more exciting to live in.
- b One area which has seen big improvements is transport. A new tram line has been built, connecting the University of Castellón with the main train station. This has made it much easier to get to the uni. Another interesting thing is that a bike-rental scheme has been introduced all over the city, which means that you can hire a bike for free, ride it for up to two hours, then leave it in another area of the city. This is great. Also, a new, very modern, train station has been built, and the old train station has been converted into a police station. The university has been expanded, and they've built a new hall of residence for students to live in.
- c Castellón is really well known as a market town, but in the last ten years, the old market building has been knocked down to make way for new shops, and a completely new, covered market has been constructed. It's really great, it's much bigger than the old one, and there are more choices of things to buy there. Also, in the north-east of the city, a new shopping complex has been built. The area used to be full of trees, but the trees were cut down and replaced by new shops. It's a great place to spend an afternoon browsing the shops with your friends.
- d Definitely. The port area has been completely redeveloped and modernized. They've built a new cinema on the waterfront, and there are lots of new bars and clubs near the beach, where you can enjoy yourself, particularly in the summer. The port area has also been pedestrianized, which is so nice, because you can walk around in peace and relax without hearing the sounds of cars all the time.
- e Yes, overall, there has been a shift towards becoming a modern, vibrant city, and it's great to live here. In terms of the future, an airport is under construction at the moment, and it is due to open in three years' time, which will be fantastic. I've also heard that the council is planning to create a new nature park on the outskirts of the city, and I'm looking forward to going there when it opens.

19. Ever since the 1978 Camp David Agreement and the 1979 peace treaty signed between Egypt and Israel, the Suez Canal has been filled with a constant flow of maritime traffic. It is 163 km long, but still not wide enough to accommodate modern ships sailing in opposite directions. There are plans to widen the canal but, for now, ships can pass only at two points—the Bitter Lakes and Al - Ballan. With a depth of 19.5 metres, the canal is deep enough for most ships, except for super tankers. The canal is the prime source of hard currency for Egypt's troublesome economy. Each of the 50 ships that pass through the canal each day is charged a fee based on its size and weight. The average fee is about $70,000.

1. It is implied in the passage that
 - A. the famous Camp David is located near the Suez Canal
 - B. the Suez Canal was constructed sometime after 1979
 - C. there are no bridges anywhere that cross the Suez Canal
 - D. in the period before 1979, fewer ships used the Suez Canal
 - E. the traffic on the Suez Canal makes shipping dangerous
2. The passage suggests that
 - A. the Egyptians could make more money if they widened the Suez Canal
 - B. without the canal, the Egyptian government would be much better off
 - C. super tankers must proceed very carefully while going through the canal
 - D. the bigger and heavier a ship is, the more it has to pay to use the canal
 - E. the Israelis get a sizeable commission from the Suez Canal's traffic
3. It can be determined from the figures in the passage that
 - A. most ships on the Suez Canal are under 20 metres tall
 - B. a large ship pays about $1,400 to pass through the canal
 - C. the Egyptians make, on average, around $3,500,000 a day from the canal
 - D. the Suez Canal is less than 20 metres wide in most parts
 - E. passage through the canal costs almost $100 per kilometer

20. The shiny metal supermarket shopping trolley, part of the landscape since the 1960s, is on the way out. Sainsbury's is introducing what it calls a bionic trolley, made of recyclable plastic, which is lighter, easier to control and, in theory, lasts forever. Its headquarters in Ashford, Kent, has ordered 450 plastic trolleys, and eventually the company plans to replace 250,000 metal ones at its 395 stores. The new brightly colored plastic trolley is made of a substance called Durethan, which is a recyclable material used for making cars. The only metal part of the trolley will be the nuts used to hold it together. A Sainsbury's spokeswoman said that unlike the existing metal trolleys, which have to be removed from service if damaged and have an average life of seven years, the new trolleys can be taken apart and repaired.

1. We may conclude from the passage that the old supermarket trolleys
 - A. were supposed to last forever when they were first introduced
 - B. are being replaced in response to customer demand
 - C. are not at all heavy or difficult for shoppers to use
 - D. are often removed from the shops and left lying around
 - E. are less environmentally -friendly than the new ones
2. It is obvious from the passage that Sainsbury's
 - A. plans to supply the new trolleys to other firms
 - B. is a company which runs a chain of supermarkets
 - C. is replacing all its trolleys with 450 plastic ones
 - D. will be constructing its own trolleys from Durethan
 - E. has about 250,000 plastic trolleys in storage
3. One way in which the new 'bionic' trolleys differ from the old metal trolleys is that
 - A. the new ones will only have to be repaired about every seven years
 - B. the old style of trolley has to be repaired on a regular basis
 - C. the old metal ones have to be sent away for regular servicing
 - D. the new ones will last for about seven years longer than the old ones
 - E. the new trolleys are repairable and thus don't have to be replaced

21. Eliminating poverty is largely a matter of helping children born into poverty to rise out of it. Once families escape from poverty, they do not fall back into it. Middle-class children rarely end up poor. The primary reason poor children do not escape from poverty is that they do not acquire basic mental skills. They cannot read, write, calculate, or articulate. Lacking these skills, they cannot get or keep a well-paid job. The best mechanism for breaking this vicious circle is to provide the poor with better educational opportunities. Since children born into poor homes do not acquire the skills they need from their parents, they must be taught these skills in school.

1. The writer makes the point that, once people have overcome poverty,
 - A. the skills of reading and writing cease to be important for them
 - B. they cease to mix socially with the poor
 - C. they soon learn to adopt middle-class manners and ways
 - D. it is most unlikely that they will ever become poor again
 - E. they become eligible for well-paid employment in industry
2. According to writer, if poverty is to be overcome,
 - A. the only effective means for this would be to provide better education
 - B. more well-paid jobs should be offered to the poor
 - C. all children, regardless of their class should receive the same formal education
 - D. middle-class children should be given better educational opportunities
 - E. the education of children should be based on mental skills
3. The main argument of the passage is that
 - A. the children of the poor must learn basic mental skills at school so that they can escape from poverty.
 - B. middle class children do not need to learn basic mental skills at school, since they learn them at home
 - C. the elimination of poverty can only be achieved if the poor and the rich attend the same school
 - D. since basic mental skills are not being taught efficiently at schools, educational reform is essential
 - E. a child born into a poor family will inevitably stay poor all through his life

22. Sleep researchers have found that people can make themselves wake up at a given time simply by deciding to do so before they go to sleep. Scientists took two groups of volunteers and, at nightfall, told one group that they would be woken at 6 a.m. and the other that they would be woken at 9 a.m. The sleepers' levels of the hormone adrenocorticotropin, which is known to cause spontaneous awakening, were then measured. In each group, there was a rise in the levels of the hormone one hour before the volunteers expected to get up. The three -hour difference between the rise in hormones in the two groups suggests that the body can be programmed to wake up on command.

1. The people studied by the researchers
 - A. participated in the experiment at their own will
 - B. suffered from insomnia
 - C. were having difficulty getting up early
 - D. were unable to wake up by other means
 - E. came from similar backgrounds
2. It seems that adrenocorticotropin
 - A. exists in higher levels in people who wake up very early
 - B. is produced by the body some time before a person wakes up
 - C. can't be measured without waking up the person being studied
 - D. is used by doctors for people who have difficulty getting up
 - E. is responsible for causing sleeplessness in a number of people
3. The experiment related in the passage has indicated that
 - A. people who wake up at 6 a.m. have more hormones than 9 a.m. risers
 - B. computers can be used to help people wake up earlier than usual
 - C. our bodies are capable of being conditioned to wake up at a suggested hour
 - D. the hormones that wake people up have a three -hour long cycle
 - E. hormones are more effective than outside stimuli for waking people
